REPORT OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

Homeless and neglected children of all ages and many races, and of various grades and conditions, were cared for during 2012 children. 1911 by the Children's Aid Society of Pennsylvania. We began the year with 1657 children for whom we were responsible, and we received 355 boys and girls for care in 1911, making a total of 2012 children dealt with by the Society during the year.

In this large group there are deserted children whose parentage is unknown. There are children whose parents are unable to care for them because of illness or physical defects. There are children one or both of whose parents are unfit to care for them because of intemperance, immorality, or cruelty, resulting in various forms of serious neglect. There are children who are illegitimate. There are children one or both of whose parents have been sent to prison. There are children whose fathers have died, leaving them in the care of a mother unable or unwilling to provide properly for them. There are children whose mothers have died, with the result that the home is broken up. There are children of deserted mothers who for various reasons are unable to care for them. There are children made homeless through the separation and neglect of one or both of their parents, and there are a few children who have lost both parents by death.

The Children's Aid Society stands ready, in so far as it can secure the necessary resources, to provide for such children. Meeting the need. There are no arbitrary admission requirements as to age, sex, color, race, or religion. If the child is found to need the kind of care that the Society is equipped to give, it can be received.

From no less than 76 different sources the Children's Aid Society received the boys and girls for whom it cared during 1911. These children came from 24 poor boards and 12 county Juvenile Courts in eastern Pennsylvania, from 11 different societies, from 9 hospitals, from 11 institutions, and from 9 miscellaneous sources, such as parents, relatives, friends, social settlements, probation officers, etc. Thus the Society has become the agent of a large number of public and private institutions and societies and of individuals in finding homes in approved families, with or without payment of board, for homeless and neglected children.

The Children's Aid Society believes that homeless and neglected children, normal in body and mind and not requiring special training, should be cared for in families whenever possible. For such children experience shows that a properly selected foster home is the best substitute for the natural home. It is, however, recognized that foster homes without payment of board are not practicable for many classes of children immediately after the children become dependent, and, of course, for children requiring temporary care the free home is not usually available. There are convalescent children and abandoned babies in poor physical condition. There are unattractive children, and those having markedly bad inheritances, which may predispose them to certain mental and physical diseases. There are motherless children whose fathers are responsible for their partial support, either by direct agreement or by order of court. There are children who are beginning to be wayward and incorrigible because of improper home influences. There are children too young to earn their own way if placed in families, and too old to be preferred by those wishing a child for adoption. There are more boys than girls brought to the Society, while a majority of the families willing to take children free prefer girls. There are children desirable and available for permanent placement for adoption who must be supported until the right home, adapted to the needs of the particular child, can be found.

To give the undoubted advantages of family life to such children, with as little delay as possible, the Children's Aid Society of Pennsylvania conducts an extensive boarding-out department. In developing the boarding-out plan as the best means of providing care and training for a majority of the homeless The Society's method tested by and neglected children that it receives, the experience at Children's Aid Society has followed a method used home and abroad. cessfully for many years in Massachusetts and in England, Ireland, Scotland, Germany, France, and other countries. This plan has been tested by almost thirty years of successful experience in Pennsylvania, and it is commending itself as the best method in a number of other States throughout the country.

Boarding-out, as practised by the Children's Aid Society, means placing one or two children* each in carefully selected private families, usually in the country or What boarding- small villages. In selecting these boarding homes out means. careful attention is given to the personal qualifications of the caretakers, as well as to the house and its surroundings and to the neighborhood in general. Consideration is also given to the fitness of the foster parents with respect to the age, sex, color, and religion of the children to be placed in their care. The boarding homes now in use have been secured by a process of selection and sifting, and many of the caretakers have had a number of years' experience in the care and training of our wards. On the waiting list, ready to take children to board on short notice, are good suitable homes, which constitute a most valuable asset for the Society in this work. The Society pays a moderate amount for board to the caretakers, furnishes clothing for the children, provides medical and dental care, and reserves the right to remove children whenever it is deemed desirable for the welfare of the child. These children live with their caretakers as members of their families, sharing in the social life of the community, just as other children do. Being placed with families whose religious faith corresponds with that of their own parents, they attend church services and go to Sunday-school with those with whom they live. Those of proper school age are sent to the public or parochial schools.

To do this work efficiently and on a scale large enough to meet the needs of the community requires an adequate force of trained, paid agents, working under competent direction. While the investigation and careful selection of the boarding homes and Safeguarding the the proper fitting of the children into them are boarding-out essential to success, they are merely a good beginning. It is necessary to exercise careful and plan. constant supervision after the children are placed.

Our agents make unannounced visits to the homes of the caretakers, to look after the welfare of the children. They also visit the schools which the children attend, and become familiar with the social life in the communities where the children are boarded. The Society also receives direct from the teachers detailed reports as to the children's progress in their studies, and a statement as to the condition of their health and clothing. Quarterly reports are sent to us by pastors in regard to the attendance of our wards at church and Sunday-school.

The development of the boarding-out plan by the Children's Aid Society has given to the community a child-caring [Expanding to meet agency with ability to expand to meet the growing the growing needs needs of the community, provided only that the of the community. necessary resources are forthcoming—and maintenance every child must have, whether he be kept in a family or placed in an institution built and equipped for the purpose of child care. By boarding children in individual private families the Society does not find its capacity arbitrarily limited by the number of available beds, or the existence of a quarantine, or the necessity of rules and regulations in regard to age, sex, color, or religion. By adopting this method of providing care and training for its wards it is possible for the Children's Aid Society to meet the needs of many different kinds of children.

In dealing with the various classes of children noted above, experience shows that a distinction must be made between those who require only temporary care and those needing permanent care during their natural years of dependency.

Among the children needing more or less temporary care are those having parents who can and should take them back again. Some of these come from homes temporarily broken up because of illness, or accident, or other incapacity of the breadwinner, or the death of one of the [parents.

In other cases the children have been taken by order of the Juvenile Court or through the action of the Society to Protect Children from Cruelty because of parental neglect or unfitness. In some cases the parents are able to re-establish their homes, while parents who have neglected their children frequently mend their ways under fear of permanently losing them. Thus it happens that each year a certain number of children who are in our boarding homes are returned to parents or relatives. Whenever it seems necessary, the Society continues for a time its supervision over such children after they have been returned to their own homes. Another group of children, some of whom are eventually returned to their parents, are boys committed to us by Juvenile Courts because of truancy or incorrigibility, which is often due to bad home and neighborhood influences. Sometimes the family moves to a better neighborhood and home conditions change so that such boys, after care and training for a year or two in one of our boarding homes, can be safely returned to their own homes. We also board temporarily some children who are later put into an institution for special training which they are found to require. It will be seen, therefore, that the Children's Aid Society, in addition to its extensive home-finding work, meets an urgent need by giving temporary care to certain classes of children.*

The other group of children to be provided for are those requiring permanent care. Some of these children we are able to place as soon as they are received, to be raised as an own child; others, because of their physical condition or for the lack at the moment of a foster home suited to their particular needs, must also be temporarily boarded either in families or in an institution.

To find suitable foster homes for children needing permanent care the Society maintains a home-finding department.

Home finding. Applications from families desiring to take children are solicited from the various counties in eastern and central Pennsylvania. These are investigated and sorted according to the age, sex, color, and religion of the child desired. This list of approved applications is constantly checked up with the classified list of children in our boarding homes and elsewhere, for whom we have been asked to find permanent free foster homes. Much care and judgment must be exercised to select the homes best adapted to the needs of the particular child. During the year our agents visited and inspected 822 homes that were offered for children.

Among the children received for permanent care 28 were legally adopted during the year by the families with whom they had been previously placed. These children had been in the care of the Society an average of three and one-half years, and their average age when adopted was seven years. Eighteen were girls and 10 were boys; 26 were white and 2 were colored; 3 of the children were full orphans, 5 were half-orphans, and 10 had been abandoned by one or both parents, while 8 were illegitimate. In only 2 instances were the parents living together. The Society does not consent to the adoption of a child until after it has lived at least one year in the home of the adopting parents. A child is not placed with a family on trial until after the home has been carefully investigated and inspected. As a result of our home-finding work these 28 formerly homeless and neglected children are now receiving care, training, education, and support from foster parents who have made them their legal heirs.

The foregoing statement of the large number of children requiring care and the measures adopted by the Society for their relief may naturally cause an inquiry as to the kind of conditions affecting family life which result in the homelessness and neglect of so many children.

It is not the purpose to give here full and accurate statistics of the many complex causes of child dependence, nor a complete census of all the children in the families, but rather to show some of the more apparent and immediate circumstances which are found among those provided for by the Children's Aid Society. Of the 355 children received for care during the past year 289 were legitimate children while 45 were illegitimate, and concerning the remaining 21 we were unable to get definite information about the parents. We give below some further details about these children.

In the group of 21 children whose exact parentage is unknown ten were foundlings or deserted children sent to the Society by the Philadelphia Department of Health and Charities. Five of these were in poor physical condition largely as a result of having been abandoned by their parents.

Four others came to us from almshouses outside of Philadelphia, two being colored infants only a few months old, while two were white children, one being a girl ten years of age and the other a young baby.

Two more were children abandoned by parents in boarding houses. One, a little girl five years old, had been cruelly treated by the boarding-house keeper's son, a victim of the cocaine habit, while the other was a boy ten years of age, rapidly being demoralized by evil associations. Two children were received from friends, one a fourteen-year-old colored boy who had been kept in disorderly and degenerate surroundings. The other was a youth seventeen or eighteen years of age who was received temporarily when the facts about his parents were not known. His mother was located in Chicago and he finally went to her there. One child, a white girl twelve or thirteen years of age, was sent from the Juvenile Court of Lancaster County, where she had been abandoned by her parents.

Another, a girl fourteen years of age, had been living in Lackawanna County with foster parents who had taken her at the age of four years from an institution in another county. As she grew older they proved to be incompetent to manage her, and the child was placed by them in an institution in Lackawanna County. After a time this institution returned the girl to the foster parents, who again had trouble with her. She was then committed by the Juvenile Court to another institution, where she proved to be obedient, affectionate, and easy to control. As she evidently needed the wise training of a good competent woman rather than the special training of an institution, the Children's Aid Society was asked to place her in a good family. The girl is now doing well under our supervision in a home in the country. Another child taken from foster parents was a four-year-old boy. We do not know from whom they received him. The foster mother, a woman of doubtful character, deserted her husband, who failed to provide for the child.

While it is the fixed policy of the Society to do everything possible to prevent the separation of illegitimate children from their mothers, there are, nevertheless, exceptional cases. Brief statements selected from the records of the 45 illegitimate children received during the year may serve to show why in certain cases they could not be kept with their mothers.*

A. S., a colored girl, born October 13, 1908. Mother a slightly feeble-minded white woman. Father a colored man whose whereabouts are unknown. A. S. is the fourth illegitimate child of this woman. She has recently given birth to a fifth child whose father is a white man. Of course, this unfortunate woman ought not to be at large in the community, but it does not seem to be possible at the present time to secure custodial care for her in a suitable institution in this state.

J. C., a boy, born August 6, 1909. The mother died of tuberculosis when the child was one month old. The father is a married man with a family. He could not be located when the child was received.

B. R. M., a boy, born November 24, 1910. The mother was sixteen years old when the child was born and the father nineteen years of age. There were special circumstances in this case which made it seem expedient to relieve the girl mother of the care of the infant when it was three months old.

C. S., a girl, born August 19, 1905. Her mother had been arrested for keeping a disreputable house and for harboring minors.

B. K. G., a boy, born November 4, 1906. The mother deserted the child. The father, a married man, agreed to contribute toward the support of the boy in one of our boarding homes until we could place him for adoption.

One hundred and fifteen of the children of legitimate birth were half orphans or full orphans, of whom 29 had lost their fathers and 80 their mothers, while six had lost both parents. Forty-one others were children of deserted mothers and 32 were children of parents who had separated.

The 29 children whose fathers have died represent 24 different mothers, hardly any two of whom are exactly alike in their circumstances. Undoubtedly some of them would not have fallen into the unfortunate conditions noted below if timely and proper help had been extended to them. Some apparently struggled to keep their children with them, while others made but little effort to prevent the breaking up of their families. We believe that good mothers should not be compelled to give up their children merely on account of poverty. Ordinarily it is wiser to help such mothers to keep their children with them. Here, however, are 29 children of widows, most of whom were received because of the moral unfitness or physical incapacity of their mothers to give them proper care. For instance, three of these mothers were physically unable to properly care for their children, and one of these was also immoral; another had entered an almshouse; one had neglected her children, and three were incompetent and unable to control and to train their children; seven were immoral and three others were of doubtful character; another was at service and had other children to support; two were mentally deficient, and three contributed toward the support of their children but were temporarily unable to care for them.

*To assist in preventing the needless separation of unfortunate mothers from their children, the Society maintains a special department for destitute women with young children. See page 27 for a statistical statement of the work for the year 1911.

Of the 80 children who had lost their mothers, many had become entirely dependent as a result of the illness, intemperance, immorality, shiftlessness, or desertion of the father. There were also a number of children toward whose support their fathers were able and willing to contribute. Such children are placed at board in the country where the fathers can visit them at intervals. We seek to develop responsibility for their support by the father, so that they need not be a charge upon charity to any greater extent than is necessary. Frequently such fathers re-establish their homes and the children are then usually returned to them. The following are typical of some of the conditions found among this group of half orphans.

children.

W., a boy, born June 19, 1909. Mother died of tuberculosis leaving a little girl, nine years old, and this baby. The father's mother took the little girl. There were no relatives at the time to take the baby, whom we placed boarding in the country under an agreement with the father to contribute toward its support.

E., G., and J., a boy, ten years old, and two girls, nine and three years old. The mother of these children died recently. Their father had tuberculosis, and was unable to support the children. They had no relatives able at that time to receive them, and they were brought to the Society for care. E. was received temporarily and then placed in the Seybert Institution for special care. G. was placed boarding in the country and remains in our care, although a relative may be able to take her a little later. J. had to have several months of special medical care in a hospital and in our Receiving Shelter before she could be placed to board in the country. After being in our care for several months an aunt was able to receive her into her own home.

R. and C. are boys, three and four years of age. Mother died leaving a baby and these two little boys. The father is a German by birth and his only relative in this country is a sister who is taking care of the baby for him. Both boys were in poor physical condition when received, and one of them required hospital care and medical attention in the Receiving Shelter for several months before he could be placed. Both boys are now boarding in the same home in the country, where they are doing well. The father visits them and contributes toward their support.

W. and L., two girls, thirteen and seven years of age. The mother died in 1909, leaving a young infant which lived only a few weeks. The father, a mill worker with a good record, tried to board with his two girls, but the neighborhood near his work was not good and his children were neglected. We accepted the girls to board under an agreement by which he contributed toward their support. These children have recently been returned to the father, who is married again and has re-established his home.

E., J., and E., three girls, fourteen, eleven, and six years of age, and their brother, seven years of age. Their mother died three years ago; their father has become a heavy drinker. He was ordered by the Juvenile Court to contribute toward the support of his children, but he has failed to do so. After the death of the mother a sister of the father tried to help him to keep up his home, but he would not do his part in the matter of support and the children were much neglected and finally brought to the Society for care.

The actual number of full orphans in proportion to the whole number of homeless and neglected children is probably much

Orphans. smaller than is generally supposed. Out of the 355 children received by this Society in 1911, only six had lost both parents. Two of these were colored boys, one of whom was a young vagrant wandering about the country and begging, while the other was a thirteen-year-old colored boy committed to the Society by the Juvenile Court. Two others were white boys, one of whom had lost both parents before he was three years of age and had fallen into the hands of a foster mother who was intemperate and a woman of doubtful character. As the boy grew older he was abused and required to do hard work not suited to his age. Finally his foster mother brought him into Juvenile Court on the charge of taking money from her, and he was then committed to the Children's Aid Society, to be placed in a properly selected family under supervision. The other was a twelve-year-old white boy in bad physical condition when received. The remaining two full orphans were white girls. One was about thirteen years of age, and as a result of neglect had been sent to a training school from which we received her, while the other, about seventeen years of age, was not strong physically and rather dull mentally.

The 41 children whose mothers had been deserted present a wide variety of conditions. In one instance the child was illegitimate and the mother had married a man who later deserted her, after which she herself abandoned the child. In another case after the death of the child's own father the mother remarried and was subsequently deserted by the man. The mother became ill and when brought to our attention was unable to care for her child. One deserter returned to his family and re-established his home. The other 38 represent 27 different fathers who deserted their wives. Prior to their desertion it is known that at least 9 of these men drank to excess, 1 was an epileptic and intemperate, 2 stole money, 1 served a term in prison for non-support, at least 7 were more or less shiftless, while in 7 other cases we lack definite information about the character of the men.

Among the wives of the 9 men addicted to drink prior to desertion 1 had tuberculosis, 1 was in a hospital for care, and 7 were partially self-supporting. The epileptic husband left his wife with 6 children under thirteen years of age. Of the 2 men who stole money, the wife of 1 was the mother of 7 children, while the other, who was almost blind, was left with 4 children. The wife of the man who was in prison was left with 4 children. Among the wives of the 7 men who were shiftless and neglectful of their families prior to desertion, 1 had tuberculosis, 1 was in poor health, 1 was intemperate, 1 had served a term in the county prison as a result of drink and immorality, 1 neglected her family, while 2 were apparently respectable and self-supporting. Of the wives of the 7 deserters whose previous character is unknown to us, 2 were immoral, while 5 were apparently respectable and self-supporting.

In the case of 32 children whose parents had separated there are 22 mothers, among whom 3 were feeble-minded, 6 had deserted their children, and at least 2 of these were immoral, 1 was shiftless, 1 was in an almshouse, 2 were intemperate, one, after separating from her husband, had married again and had been deserted by her second husband, the character of 2 was questionable, 3 others were known to be immoral, while 3 were apparently respectable and self-supporting. Among the 22 fathers, 2 were ex-convicts, 1 was feeble-minded, 1 was insane, 4 were immoral, 3 were intemperate, 4 were cruel or neglectful, the character of 2 was unknown, while 5 others were believed to be normal. The mere statement of these characteristics indicates sufficiently clearly in most cases why the parents were separated, with the result that the children were rendered homeless.

We received 101 children of legitimate birth with both parents living, whose homes, while not actually broken up, were either unfit or very undesirable places for the children to live. In some instances the father, because of illness or physical defects, was lacking in wage-earning capacity, while the mother, by reason of ill health, incompetence, or for other causes, was unable or unwilling, even with charitable assistance, to care properly for the children. There were also some cases in which the father, even though able-bodied and thrifty, was not able to hold his home together because of the immorality or shiftlessness of the mother. In numerous other instances the father was immoral, intemperate, or lazy and voluntarily neglected his family. Sometimes we found that one or both parents had been sent to prison, to hospitals for the insane, or to other institutions. Typical of conditions found among the children in this group are the following:

G., S., and D., a boy ten years old and two girls four and six years of age. Father described as "a shiftless, lazy, drinking man." The mother is feeble-minded.

C., a boy five years old. Father and mother both intemperate. Unsuccessful effort made to induce man to enter an institution for treatment for alcoholism. Mother committed to House of Correction. This boy is one of five children.

W., a boy one year old. Father a respectable mechanic. The mother is an immoral woman. She finally deserted her husband after seriously neglecting her child. It was in bad condition when received and lived only one week after coming into our care.

G., a boy four years old. His mother has tuberculosis and has been sent to an institution. The father is working and contributes toward the support of his son, who has been placed boarding in the country.

M., and L., two girls, five and six years of age. Both parents had been sent to the House of Correction. A baby one month old was sent along with the mother.

L., and T., two girls, three and five years of age. Father in prison, the mother is not strong, but is working and contributing something toward the support of her children, whom we are boarding with a family in the country.

E., C., and E., three boys, three, six, and eight years of age. The father failed to support his family and is shiftless; has served time in a workhouse. The mother is an epileptic.

made to the three affiliated agencies and those co-operating with them. It endeavors to secure for each child such help as will be best for it in so far as the resources of the community make it possible. The Bureau seeks to promote a close working relationship among all the child-helping forces in the community, believing that this will increase the efficiency of each one. Experience shows that the community is best served when each agency covers, as fully as it can, the field in which it is best fitted to operate. In accordance with these principles the Bureau acts as a clearing-house for a large number of children's societies and institutions in the community.

During the year the Bureau, on behalf of the affiliated societies, received 3251 applications from about 80 different sources, such as societies, institutions, churches, hospitals, courts, city and county departments, individuals, etc., involving a total of 4550 children. In dealing with these applications agents of the Bureau made 9615 visits. In providing for such children as were found after investigation to need help or attention of some kind the Bureau enlisted the active assistance of 43 different agencies.

* The Children's Bureau is an unincorporated co-operative agency established in February, 1907, by the joint action of the Children's Aid Society of Pennsylvania and the Seybert Institution for Poor Boys and Girls. In May, 1908, the Pennsylvania Society to Protect Children from Cruelty joined with the Children's Aid Society and the Seybert Institution in the conduct and work of the Bureau. Since November, 1909, the Receiving Shelter at 419 South 15th Street, Philadelphia (entrance, 1420 Waverly Street), has been conducted and maintained as a part of the Children's Bureau. The management of the Children's Bureau is now vested in a Joint Executive Committee, consisting of two directors, the president, and the general secretary of the Children's Aid Society; two trustees, the president, and superintendent of the Seybert Institution for Poor Boys and Girls; and two directors, the president, and secretary of the Pennsylvania Society to Protect Children from Cruelty. The Joint Executive Committee supervises the work of the Bureau through a superintendent who has charge of the agents and the reception of applications. (See pages 55, 56.)

The Receiving Shelter provides temporarily for children received by the three agencies until permanent disposition can be made of them. The work of the Shelter includes the use of a considerable number of private boarding homes in the city and suburbs, where children are placed for a few days or weeks while receiving medical attention or pending transfer to country homes, institutions, etc. The Shelter passed through its care during the year 1116 different children. By this method a central place is provided where all the children can be received and prepared for assignment to the various agencies from which they are to receive care. The children are first put through a thorough cleaning-up process, new clothing is provided, and each child is then carefully examined by a doctor, assisted by a trained nurse. These medical examinations are made with great care, and, whenever necessary, specialists are called upon for further diagnosis. A total of 3258 physical examinations were made. Antitoxin was administered in 553 cases; 302 vaccinations were made; tuberculin tests were given in 21 instances, and cultures taken in 65 cases, while 342 children were sent to 20 different hospitals for care and 207 were sent to 17 different dispensaries for treatment. In 225 instances the eyes of children were examined by a specialist and 121 glasses were furnished; mental examinations were made for 63 children, and in addition to this 3871 treatments of various kinds were given in the Shelter. During the year, 589 children received dental treatment.

While the Children's Bureau is maintained and conducted primarily for Philadelphia by the three affiliated agencies,
Bureau of the Children's Aid Society seeks to apply the same
Information. principles of co-operation in its own work throughout the counties of eastern and central Pennsylvania.*

The facilities of the Society are at the service of any one in the State who desires to consult about children who are in trouble. We will do what we can to solve the difficulty and to apply the best remedy. In so far as the resources can be secured, we will care for the children found to need our aid. If the case is not one coming within the province of this Society, we will endeavor to put the applicant in touch with the proper agency.

"To maintain for the public a bureau of information concerning destitute children and child-caring institutions," and "to acquire and diffuse intelligent views on all subjects relating to this branch of charity," are among the objects of the State Society. Inquiries, calls for speakers at public meetings in the interests of child-helping work, and requests for conferences with County Committees, Directors of the Poor, and Juvenile Court officials, indicate that there is an increasing interest throughout the State in the work of the Children's Aid Society.

We gratefully acknowledge the receipt during 1911 of legacies from the estates of Robert J. Wright, Joseph H. Brazier, ments.

We also extend our hearty thanks to the 1502 subscribers to our general fund without whose help much of the work accomplished during the past year would have been impossible. We are likewise greatly indebted to the contributors toward the support of special children and to all who gave time and effort as members of committees and in other ways.

A much-appreciated addition to the annual fixed income of the Society has resulted from the establishment of a trust fund
memorial fund. of the deed of trust executed by Messrs. Ellwood Bonsall and E. Warner Bonsall, as trustees of the residuary estate of Annie L. Lowry, the Children's Aid Society of Pennsylvania is to receive semi-annually the net income on a fund of $22,840.00. By request of the trustees of the estate, and in grateful memory of Mrs. Lowry, the Board of Directors has placed a suitable tablet in the main office of the Society.

In previous reports we have emphasized the urgent need of the Society for a larger annual income, both from sub-
Funds needed. scriptions and from endowments and trust funds. While there has been a gratifying increase in our resources, there has been a more than corresponding increase in the demands upon us. The Children's Aid Society is constantly facing new and enlarged opportunities to help homeless and neglected children. To enable the Society to do its full share in giving these most helpless of the community's dependents an opportunity to become good citizens, more funds must be secured. The nature of such work makes it necessary for the Society to accept, for large numbers of children, continuous responsibility extending over a period of years. It is, therefore, essential for the Society to have a staple annual income upon which it can depend with a reasonable degree of certainty. Accordingly, we most earnestly solicit additions to our endowment fund as well as more and larger annual contributions.

APPENDIX A.

CHAIRMAN'S REPORT OF THE CLOTHING COMMITTEE FOR THE YEAR ENDING DECEMBER 31, 1911.

Since the last report of the Clothing Committee the character of the work has changed to a certain extent.

It has seemed wiser and more economical to do less cutting out and making up of clothing, and more buying of ready-made garments. The manufacturers offering us at the present time so much better and cheaper clothing than in the past, the expense is really less, with better results, than buying all the materials and making them up. For this reason, in the past year, the Committee has cut out less clothing than usual, the amount being 2623 garments, as against 3393 of the previous year. These garments, with the addition of 1000 on hand, have been made up for us by 11 different Dorcas Societies, making a total of about 3623 garments during the year.

Since last spring the Committee has undertaken all the buying of clothing for the Society except that which the caretakers in the country are authorized to purchase for the children at the local stores. Miss Julia Wood, with a subcommittee, has had full charge of the purchasing, and it is encouraging to be able to report that we have secured all the clothing needed for the children in the care of the Society at a somewhat less expenditure than formerly. In the previous year there were two women employed in the Clothing Department. Last spring it became possible to reduce the expenses by retaining only one, who, with the help two days a week of an extra woman, has been able to do the work. The Committee has met the expenses of this woman, which, up to December 31st, amounted to $123.48.

Our usual Christmas appeal* sent almost entirely to children, brought in $346.50, so that we were able to send a present to each child in the Society. There were about 1500 presents sent, which surely brought much pleasure, and we must give the heartiest thanks to our generous little subscribers.

The Committee also has made quite an effort to interest the various Needlework Guild branches in giving larger contributions of clothing this year, with most generous responses.

* See page 45 ff.

The readjustment of office space in the Charities Building made it necessary to assign smaller rooms to the Clothing Department. The Committee has been able to care for all the clothing quite well by putting in extra shelving and additional closets.

In closing, the Committee desires to express its deep appreciation of the assistance given by the various Dorcas Societies and the 29 branches of the Needlework Guild of America.

Submitted for the Committee by

APPENDIX B.

REPORT ON WORK OF COUNTY ORGANIZATIONS.

While the main office of the Children's Aid Society of Pennsylvania is in Philadelphia, its territory includes most of the counties in eastern and central Pennsylvania. Since the Society was established in Philadelphia thirty years ago, the movement has extended throughout the entire State. The Children's Aid Society of Western Pennsylvania was incorporated in 1889, and includes 23 counties in the western part of the State, having headquarters in Pittsburgh. There are also a number of county societies having their own headquarters, but co-operating or affiliated with the Pittsburgh or Philadelphia offices. These combined Children's Aid Societies have under their care and supervision throughout the State approximately 3000 children, thus being not only the largest placing-out agency in Pennsylvania, but one of the largest in the United States.

A brief account is given below of the activities of the county organizations. This statement does not include all the counties from which the Society has received children, but it shows what is being done in the counties in eastern and central Pennsylvania by the local Children's Aid Societies in addition to the work conducted by the main office in Philadelphia. A statistical statement showing the work of the main office may be found on pages 22 to 27.

The BUCKS COUNTY Children's Aid Society at the close of the year reports 45 boys and girls in care. Of these children, 17 were boarding in private families, 27 were in free homes, and one was awaiting placement. All these children were received from the Bucks County Poor Board. For the maintenance of the children and the prosecution of the work the county treasurer of the Society reports a disbursement, during the year, of $1818.96 for maintenance and general expenses. The receipts during the year were $1855.25 from the Bucks County Directors of the Poor and $30.00 from donations. The members of the County Committee act as visitors to the children placed out in the county, and they also inspect homes offered for children. This service of the members of the Committee is supplemented by the work of Miss Jane Watson, of Doylestown, County Secretary. The other officers of the County Society, all residents of Doylestown, are: President, Mrs. Henry T. Darlington; legal adviser, Mr. Hugh B. Eastburn; treasurer, Mrs. Richard Watson.

The CHESTER COUNTY Children's Aid Society was established in 1884, and is incorporated for the purpose of caring for dependent and neglected children in Chester County. This Society has an active membership within the County whose personal interest in the work is very helpful. A report issued by the Society in October, 1911, showed that there were 180 children in care, of whom 41 were in boarding homes while 139 were in free homes. This Society has the active and intelligent co-operation of the Chester County Directors of the Poor and of the officers of the County Home. At the annual meeting of the County Society, held in April, 1911, Mrs. Jane T. Barnard, of Kennett Square, Pa., who rendered faithful and most valuable service as president of the Chester County Society for nineteen years, declined re-election. Mrs. I. Roberts Comfort, 300 North Penn Street, West Chester, Pa., was elected president to succeed Mrs. Barnard. Mrs. Sarah M. Cooper is vice-president and Mrs. William M. Marshall is treasurer. The secretary for the County is Mrs. Lydia B. Walton, Kennett Square Pa.

The COLUMBIA COUNTY Committee of the Society was organized in April, 1910, when the following officers were elected: President, Professor Albert U. Leshner; vice-president, Mr. George E. Styer; secretary, Mr. Ray E. Bomboy; treasurer, Mr. S. W. Dickson. The Society has appointed Mr. William E. Elms, a member of the bar of Columbia County, as its attorney, and the Society is making an effort to secure the appointment of a probation officer for the County Juvenile Court. During the year some progress has been made in bringing about co-operation between the public and private agencies in the County and the State Society, which has already placed under supervision in the county a number of children.

The DAUPHIN COUNTY Children's Aid Society was organized in December, 1911, with headquarters in Harrisburg. A preliminary meeting was held in Harrisburg on December 13, 1911, which was attended by representatives of a majority of the children's homes, institutions, and social agencies of Harrisburg and vicinity. After an address by Mr. Edwin D. Solenberger, general secretary of the State Society, and a general discussion of local needs in child-helping work, it was resolved by the meeting to appoint a committee on organization with power to act. On December 29, 1911, a meeting was held at which the name the Children's Aid Society of Dauphin County was chosen for the new organization. A constitution and by-laws were adopted, and a Board of Managers elected, as follows: Mrs. John Kinley Tener, Mrs. W. Orville Hickok, Miss Elise Haldeman, Mrs. Ross Hickok, Mrs. Henderson Gilbert, Miss Mary Reily, Mrs. Charles B. Fager, Mrs. George Kunkel, Miss Mary Robinson, Mrs. A. D. Hansom, Mrs. E. Z. Wallower, Mrs. Hervey Patton, Mrs. F. L. Morgenthaler, Mrs. J. W. Hawkins, Mrs. Martin E. Olmsted, Mrs. J. Henry Crossman, Mrs. Fred Cohen, Mrs. Lyman D. Gilbert, Mrs. David Kauffman, Mrs. E. Z. Gross, Mrs. Charles Covert, Mrs. W. P. McKenzie, Mrs. Carl Ely, and Miss L. G. Deeter. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Francis Jordan Hall; vice-presidents, Mrs. Martin Fager and Miss Anna McCormick; treasurer, Mr. Frank J. Brady; secretary, Mrs. Homer Black. A Finance Committee was appointed, consisting of Hon. Vance C. McCormick, chairman, Mr. John Y. Boyd, Dr. J. B. McAllister, Mgr. M. M. Hassett, Mr. Thomas McEntee, and Mr. M. L. Hershey.

The new Society will have the active and hearty support and co-operation of the Associated Charities, which has generously offered the use of its office for the agent of the Children's Aid Society. A method of co-operation will be developed between the State Society and the County organization, in order that both may work to the best advantage in the temporary and permanent care of children. The local Society will seek to do preventive and constructive work for children in trouble, in addition to co-operating in the development of a system for the permanent care of those who cannot be kept in their own homes. The Juvenile Court and chief probation officer of the County and the children's institutions have joined in promoting the establishment of this co-operative undertaking. The new movement promises much for the development of child-helping work in Harrisburg and vicinity.

The DELAWARE COUNTY Children's Aid Society reports 13 children cared for during the year 1911, of whom 11 remained in care at the close of the year. Of these children, 4 were boarding in private families in the country, while 6 were in free homes and 1 was receiving wages. These children are under the supervision of the various local branches of the County Society. The Middletown Branch has continued the sewing school at Glen Riddle for the benefit of children of factory workers. The attendance during the year averaged from 30 to 40. The treasurer's report shows an expenditure during the year ending October 14, 1911, of $340.66, for the maintenance of the children and the prosecution of the work. The officers of the Society are: President, Elizabeth S. Pennell, Wawa; vice-president, Elizabeth P. Willetts, Concordville; treasurer, Elizabeth Hall, Media; secretary, Margaret G. Sellers, Swarthmore.

The FRANKLIN COUNTY Children's Aid Society, having headquarters in Chambersburg, reports 61 children for whom they are responsible on December 31, 1911. Of this number, 32 are in free homes under the supervision of the Society, 2 are boarding in private families, 14 are in various institutions, and 13 are in the Receiving Home at Chambersburg awaiting disposition. The Society is endeavoring to raise an endowment fund of $30,000, the income of which is to be used for the purpose of finding homes and supervising children placed out. On December 31, 1911, the Society reports the sum of $6787.23 in this endowment fund. The income of the Franklin County Society from all sources during the fiscal year ending September 30, 1911, was $3388.25. This Society has the active co-operation of the Directors of the Poor, and of Hon. W. Rush Gillan, who presides over the Franklin County Juvenile Court. The officers of the County Society are: President, Mr. John G. Orr; vice-president, Dr. George F. Platt; recording secretary, Rev. W. C. Cremer, D.D.; corresponding secretary, Mrs. E. Belle Bonbrake; treasurer, Mr. W. H. Speer.

The JUNIATA VALLEY Children's Aid Society was organized in 1909 by the late Professor David Emmert, of Huntingdon. It became a corporation in 1911, when the trustees of the Huntingdon Home for Orphan and Friendless Children, which was founded in 1881, amended their charter and changed the name to the Juniata Valley Children's Aid Society. They also re-stated their purposes by adopting the following amendment to their charter.

"The purpose or object of the Corporation shall be to afford a Receiving Home for destitute, orphan and friendless children; to place such children in selected family homes and to maintain watchcare and supervision of children so placed; and to extend such other aid and care to dependent and neglected children as may be needed."

The old Huntingdon Home, which has done good service for many years, will be operated as a Receiving Home for the territory included in Bedford, Huntingdon, Mifflin, Juniata, and Perry Counties.

The facilities for home finding and for supervision of children placed out are now being developed along the lines adopted by the State Society. Careful records are kept of the children dealt with both before and after placement. Medical and dental care is given and hospital treatment secured when needed. In addition to this a general aid work is conducted for children needing temporary care as well as the home-finding work for the permanent cases.

During the year 122 different children were dealt with, of whom 108 remained in the care of the Society on December 31, 1911. At the close of the year 74 children were under supervision in private families, 4 were in families receiving wages, 5 were with parents or relatives, 3 were in various institutions, 1 was in a hospital, 1 was boarding in a private family, the whereabouts of 1 was unknown, while 20 were in the Receiving Home awaiting disposition. The Society receives children from the Juvenile Court, Directors of the Poor, parents, relatives, friends, and other sources. The officers of the Juniata Valley Society, all of Huntingdon, are: President, Mr. William Reed; treasurer endowment fund, Mr. R. J. Mattern; treasurer maintenance fund, Mr. J. H. Simpson; general secretary, Mr. Lewis L. Emmert.

The Juniata Valley and the State at large lost a good and useful citizen, and homeless and neglected children an able advocate, when Professor David Emmert died on June 21, 1911. Professor Emmert had been connected in an official capacity since 1877 with the Juniata College at Huntingdon, having served both as a member of the faculty and as a trustee. While engaged in educational work, Professor Emmert also took an active interest in the development of better methods of child-helping. His early activity in this direction is shown by the following extract from the annual report of the Children's Aid Society of Pennsylvania for the year 1883-84: "Mr. D. Emmert, founder and superintendent of the Huntingdon County Home for Friendless Children, has acted in co-operation with the Children's Aid Society of this city, in the valley of the Cumberland. He has, for several years, been doing a most disinterested work for children throughout that region, and has removed the children from the Huntingdon County almshouse, Bedford County almshouse and jail, and is negotiating, on behalf of this Society, with the Directors of Franklin and Cumberland."

In recent years Professor Emmert devoted practically his entire time to work for children. The establishment of a substantial endowment fund for supervision, the development of interest in family life for dependent children, provision for the adequate oversight of children after placement, and the organization of the Juniata Valley Children's Aid Society occupied the closing years of Professor Emmert's life. Not satisfied with merely caring for a few children in his own neighborhood, he gave in various parts of the state unselfishly of his time and strength and means to the cause of the homeless and neglected child. He frequently addressed public meetings and was the author of a number of pamphlets, circulars, and articles on various subjects relating to child-saving work. Although the founder and the superintendent of an institution for children, his experience led him to conclude that for the permanent care of homeless and neglected children, the ideal plan is to place them in carefully selected private families under thorough and constant supervision by trained, paid agents. Professor Emmert believed that the reasons which lead to the employment of trained paid workers in institutions and in schools apply also in the employment of skilled agents to select homes for homeless children and to supervise them after placement.

The year 1911 marks the thirtieth anniversary of the Huntingdon Home and the untimely death of its founder, but it is encouraging to know that the work of the institution and of the man will survive. Out of the institution has grown the Juniata Valley Children's Aid Society, which has selected as its general secretary, Lewis L. Emmert, a son of Professor Emmert. Substantially the same board of management associated with Professor Emmert has charge of the work, under the leadership of his son. The outlook for the development and expansion of the work so well begun by Professor Emmert is, therefore, very hopeful.

The LANCASTER COUNTY Committee of the Children's Aid Society has been active during the year. It has received 12 children from the Lancaster County Poor Board, Juvenile Court, General Hospital, and from miscellaneous sources. These children have been cared for by placement in private families by the county agent in co-operation with the main office. There were also in care at the opening of the year 40 boys and girls, making a total of 52 dealt with during the year by the local Society. During the year the Lancaster Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has changed its name to the Lancaster County Humane Society. A change has been made in the charter, so that the reorganized Society will investigate and prosecute cases of cruelty and neglect of children in addition to carrying on the former work, which was exclusively the prevention of cruelty to animals.

While a chief probation officer has not yet been appointed for Lancaster County, as provided for by Act of Assembly, there is an increasing interest in the work of the Juvenile Court on the part of the citizens of Lancaster. The local Committee of the Children's Aid Society is particularly interested in the extension of the work of the Juvenile Court and in the development of a probation system for the County. The co-operation of the Lancaster County Directors of the Poor has greatly facilitated the placing-out work in this county.

The officers of the County Committee, all residents of Lancaster, are as follows: Chairman, Mr. William R. Harnish; vice-chairman, Mrs. T. Roberts Appel; secretary, Miss Anna Herr; treasurer, Alderman W. S. Doeblor; county agent, Miss Anna M. Hurford, 207 E. Orange Street, Lancaster.

The LEHIGH COUNTY Committee of the Society reports 30 children in care at the close of the year. These children were received from the Lehigh County Directors of the Poor, who pay their board in private families in the country until permanent free homes are available. Mrs. Mary L. Romig, 818 Linden Street, Allentown, Pa., is secretary for the county.

The LYCOMING COUNTY Children's Aid Society closed the year 1911 with 12 children in the Receiving Home awaiting placement and 2 with parents or relatives under supervision. During the year 44 children were received (22 boys and 22 girls). These children were received from the Lycoming County Juvenile Court, from the Overseers of the Poor, and from friends, relatives, and parents. The State Society now has 31 Lycoming County children under its supervision, of whom 10 were received in 1911.

The interest in the work of the County Society is indicated to some extent by the contributions made from June 1, 1910, to May 31, 1911, as follows: Subscriptions and donations, $1705.85; classes in Sunday-schools, $138.46; rummage sale, $151.75; social features and entertainments, $490.75; collections resulting from the distribution of Stars (coin cards), $387.70. While the income has not yet been sufficient to meet the expenses, leaving a deficit on May 31, 1911, of $1717.45, the Society is making every effort to increase its revenues sufficiently to meet the needs of homeless and neglected children in Williamsport and throughout the county. It is hoped to increase the income during the year, so that it will not be necessary to curtail the work. An effort is also being made to secure funds to buy or build a suitable Receiving Home for the temporary care of children until permanent provision can be made for them.

The officers of the County Society, all residents of Williamsport, are: President, Mr. Harry A. Miller; vice-president, Rev. I. F. Heisler; secretary, Mrs. Mabel Wendt-Zahn; treasurer, Mr. William S. Millener. The officers, together with Mr. Max L. Mitchell, Rev. E. C. Armstrong, and Mrs. Mary G. Simmons, constitute the Executive Committee of the County Society.

The MONTGOMERY COUNTY Children's Aid Society reports 40 children in care at the close of the year, of whom 30 were boarding in private families, while 5 were in families without payment of board, and 5 were cared for in various institutions. Of these children, 39 were received from the Directors of the Poor of the County and one from the Juvenile Court. The Directors of the Poor make an allowance for the payment of the board of children received from them until the local Society finds permanent free homes for the children. The work of keeping the children supplied with clothing and supervising and visiting them after placement is a voluntary contribution of the Montgomery County members of the Society. This work is done under the direction of the following officers, all residents of Norristown: President, Mrs. George E. Rogers; vice-presidents, Mrs. F. D. Sower and Mrs. Joseph Fornance; treasurer, Mrs. Joseph K. Weaver, 816 De Kalb Street; secretary, Mrs. H. M. Bunting.

In NORTHAMPTON COUNTY the Bethlehem Branch reports 26 children cared for during 1911. Of this number, 21 remained under supervision at the close of the year, 7 being placed out in families, while 15 are awaiting disposition in the Children's Home at South Bethlehem. These children were received from the Northampton County Directors of the Poor. The State Society has received for care during the year 4 children from the Northampton County Juvenile Court.

During the year the Charity Organization Society in the Bethlehems was re-organized under the name of the Associated Charities of the Bethlehems, with headquarters in the South Bethlehem National Bank Building, South Bethlehem, Pa. The general secretary is Miss Caroline DeFord Penniman.

The co-operation of the Children's Aid Society, the probation officers of the Juvenile Court, the Associated Charities, and the Children's Home is of great value to the cause of child-helping work in this section. Plans are now being considered for the formation of a Lehigh Valley Children's Aid Society to include both Lehigh and Northampton counties.

The officers of the Bethlehem Branch of the Society are: President, Mrs. Frederic M. Bird, 433 Brodhead Avenue, South Bethlehem; secretary, Mrs. William R. Chandler, Delaware Avenue, South Bethlehem; treasurer, Miss Mildred Graham, Brodhead Avenue, South Bethlehem.

MISS B. R. GREEN.

* See pages 18, 19.

† Mr. Murphy resigned his position here to become the general secretary of the Boston Children's Aid Society. Mr. Murphy was connected with the Children's Bureau of Philadelphia for about four years. During that time the activities of the Bureau were greatly enlarged and developed and a much closer working agreement was established among the more important child-helping societies and institutions of the city. While many persons and agencies contributed to this end, Mr. Murphy's very efficient administration of the Children's Bureau in its various activities was a most essential contribution toward the marked progress that has been made. Mr. Murphy carries with him to Boston the best wishes of his fellow-workers and of the Boards of the agencies affiliated in the work of the Bureau.

Mr. J. Bruce Byall, general secretary of the Federated Charities of Toledo, Ohio, has been elected to succeed Mr. Murphy. Mr. Byall is a former resident of Philadelphia and a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania. He is well qualified by training and by previous experience in social work in Chicago and in Toledo to supervise the various activities of the Children's Bureau.
